REED OF PERMANENCE.

Our Lodge is loaded with the accounts of our fellow-men in arms, with the positions, exploits and incidents of individual heroism and suffering during the late rebellion of the Southern States. We refrain from overcrowding the columns of this paper with them as least to state their existence and that they will not be aired in print; and we counsel our brother journalists to follow the same course. Let the people read the official reports of the battles, and the general statements of the progress of the war, and let the private records of the brave men who fought it out be kept for the archives of the families to which they belong. Our columns are open to the publication of any facts of general interest, and especially to the publication of the names of the dead, with the circumstances of their death, and the names of the living, with the circumstances of their return to their homes. But we do not wish to be overwhelmed with the details of the battle-field, the camp and the hospital, and we are sure that our readers will thank us for this course.

It may, perhaps, be very disheartening and ungrateful to question the expediency of assembling as par ot those fervent, professional and commercial patriotism my patrons of our among that we consider it to be the most prudent consideration of their motives, and rejoice to recognize their fraternal sentiments, at the same time to advise patriotic their noble generosity, &c., &c., that we do not practically protect against the whole system of benevolent societies, &c., &c., &c.,

THE SOLDIERS' FAIR.

IMMENSE SUCCESS.

The Fair To-Day—Tables and Decorations—Arrangements—Byron Hall—Its Status and Tompkins—Floral Hall—The Gallery—The Organ—THE LINCOLN LOG CABIN.

Welcome from Murdoch—Opinion of Mayor Sherman Touching Sunday—Tickets—National Post Day.

The Great Fair to promote the interests of the sanitary commission, and to relieve the wants of our gallant soldiers in the field, opened its doors to the public yesterday morning, and from that time to the present hour the crowds have been constantly increasing, until last night the number of visitors was estimated at from 15,000 to 20,000. The receipts at the doors during the day were about $3,000, and the total receipts from the sale of tickets, etc., will probably reach $5,000. The Fair is a success, and a glorious success, and the ladies who have had the management of it in charge have every reason to be proud of the result of their labors. The Fair will be open to-day and to-night, and we hope that the attendance will be as large as it was yesterday. Those who have not been to the Fair should go to-day, and those who have been should go again. The more visitors there are, the more money will be realized for the benefit of the sick and wounded soldiers, and the more pleasure will be afforded to those who have labored so hard to make the Fair a success. Let the people go to the Fair to-day, and let them go in such numbers as to crowd the building to its utmost capacity.

The Fair is held in Bryan Hall, which has been admirably adapted to the purpose. The building is a large one, and is well lighted and ventilated. The tables are arranged around the sides of the hall, and in the centre is a platform, on which is the organ, and which is reserved for the speakers and singers. The tables are tastefully decorated with flags, evergreens, and flowers, and are presided over by ladies who are well known in the city, and who are universally popular. Each table has a distinctive name, and is devoted to the sale of articles appropriate to the name. Thus, there is a Sanitary table, a Soldiers' table, a Lincoln Log Cabin table, a Floral table, a Music table, a Gallery table, a Refreshment table, a Gentlemen's table, a Ladies' table, a Children's table, a Post-Office table, a Curiosity table, a Flag table, a Fancy table, a Book table, a Confectionery table, a Fruit table, a Flower table, a Toy table, a Bazaar table, a Grab table, a Lottery table, a Wheel of Fortune table, a Bible table, a Photograph table, a Relic table, a Mail table, a Telegraph table, a Newspaper
